

Misato Morino
10/5/15
CLSK121, 7th period
Prof. Hunter
Draft #2

The Qualities of Good Roommate

A good roommate should be curious and try new things everyday. He will give you many opportunities. After undergoing new things, he can get new knowledge and experiences. He may invite you for his new challenge. Then, you can open the door to new world with him. For instance, my ex roommate belonged to a NPO. She asked me to participate to new project for a volunteer. I joined and helped her to hold some events. As a result, I got a connection with someone who is a little famous in the city. I had a presentation in front of them, and it made me overcome the pressure. New experiences will let you have opportunities to see and talk with many people. Exchanging opinions with many people will help to develop yourself because everyone has a different thinking. Some of them may oppose yours, but they will make your thought deeper. Consider what characteristic is needed to your roommates to enjoy your student life and develop yourself.